Senator McAdoo Welcomed on Richmond Visit

LEO G. MARCOLLO IS APPOINTED ACTING POLICE JUDGE

CITY GOVERNMENT

JUDGE MARCOLLO

Most startling news at the meeting of the Richmond city council last Monday night was the announcement that Police Judge C. A. Odell was seriously ill at a local hospital and it will be neccessary to appoint some one to fill his place until he has recovered sufficiently from his operation.

Most gratifying it was to note that the unanimous choice of the members of the council was Attorney Leo G. Marcollo, brilliant young barrister, who has won his way into the haerts of his fellow townsmen by the clean manner in which he has worked his way up to his present success with every indication of a brilliant future.

He is a scion of one of our leading and respected pioneer families, the Marcollos. One of the youngest of Richmond's World War veterans, most remarkable is the fact that several years ago, having been graduated from Richmond Union High School and out of touch with school work for some time, he decided to enter law school later and graduated with high honors. In eight years of practise as an attorney in Richmoud he has established a fine record.

While we hope for a speedy recovery for Judge Odell, nevertheless we will stake our judgement on a statement that substitute Judge Leo Marcollo will conduct an administration of the police court that is fair and just.

GARBAGE ACT DELAYED

Referred to the health committee was the request of the city of El Cerrito to dump their rubbish on the Berkeley Waterfront property in the city limits of Richmond.

Councilman S. S. Ripley, the chairman of the council's committee indicated that one week would be more than enough for his committee to act. So action is very likely next Monday night.

CARLSON ON COMMUTES

Unexpected criticism on the delay in obtaining commute rate on busses to San Francisco begot a vigorous exposition of the entire commute fare situation by City Attorney Thomes M. Carlson. He showed conclusively that every effort is being made to obtain the rates; but because many more nd divergent interests are involved than was the rapid transit service problem which was successful recently, when Carlson led the fight backed by the entire community.

Crux of the matter is a toll of 5 cents per passenger, 75 cents per bus under the present set-up.

Until this toll which has been set by the California Toll Bridge Authority with consent of the RFC, Interurban Railway, Key System, and other interests involved, can be changed a commute bus rate cannot be. Every effort is being made to make the change.

JUDGE

LEO G. MARCOLLO

One of Richmond's leading attorneys who was appointed as substitute Police Judge while Judge C. A. Odell recovers from operation.

LETTERS

RECEPTION ECHOES

Editor Burt:

At the reception to Senator McAdoo this morning your usual assured self broke into a picture of conservation that was the laugh of the year.

I refer to the incident when you, standing in front of the cigar counter with Mr. Ed Bull, called out to Postmaster Harry McBryde of Pittsburg, "Hey, Mac." And about that time the senator passed nearby in the lobby, and himself answered your call. Was your face red? That was one of the times "when a feller needs a friend." Anyway, we found out from the incident that Senator McAdoo is a mighty human personage who also answers to the name of "Mac."—and seems to like it!

I was greatly impressed at the reception by the number of those who were very evidently workingmen. From what I could gather in talking with those I knew they figure from the Senator's record right down the line with President Roosevelt and his progressive program that he(Senator McAdoo) has amply justified the position he holds as the head of California's democracy.

I was a bit disappointed, however, Harry, that there were not many more of our civic leaders there. Those who were there were fine, but there should have been more. After all, after election, any senator is senator for all the people, not only for just those of his own party. And, while we know that Senator Johnson and Mr. Carter have done a lot of good for Richmond and Contra Costa County no one can say that Senator McAdoo hasn't done as much or more in the last three sessions of Congress. And surely, our people realize that for Richmond to have as a friend, the close friend of F. D. R. is quite something, indeed.

NATIONAL NEWS

"CALL ME MAC!"

In spite of very unusual, and rainy, weather and in spite of an early hour, at 9:15 a.m., the reception for United States Senator William Gibbs McAdoo at the Hotel Carquinez last Thursday morning was attended by a fine group of more than 200 interested citizens.

It was the first visit of the distinguished guest to our city. A public figure of national and international reputation for his sterling record in the construction of the Hudson River Tube and subsequently as Secretary of the Treasury and Director General of Railroads under President Woodrow Wilson, and his present position as United States Senator and Democratic National Committeeman for California the reason for the visit to our city was inspection of the site of the new Richmond Post Office and Federal Building at the corner of Eleventh Street and New Ia Avenue.

Commenting upon the new site, Senator McAdoo told a reporter of this newspaper, "I am highly pleased with the site that has been selected in your city as it seems to be centrally located in a spot which will contribute to the growth of Richmond. It is a spot which should prove convenient and accessible. "You folks in Richmond are extremely fortunate in living in a growing community as shown by your increasing postal receipts and I assure you that we in Washington were happy to bring those facts to the attention of the proper authorities at the time an increased appropriation was asked for," the senator concluded.

Accompanying Senator McAdoo on his visit here was our State Democratic Chairman Clifford C. Anglim, himself a Richmondite; and the arrangements for the reception were haidled by Postmaster L. J. Thomas and Assemblyman Harold F. Sawallisch.

The gathering was cosmopolitan in the extreme, workingmen standing alongside of civic and commercial leaders to greet the senator. Among those who represented the Chamber of Commerce and civic interests were noted Messrs. Ed Bull, Fred D. Parr, John F. Galvin, Bob Sharp and Fred S. Newsom. They paid the respects of the city for the help of Senator McAdoo in the matter of our local post-office.

Among the party leaders present were Democratic County Committeemen Dan Noziglia, Thomas Kenny, Jack Healy, John Alexander and Harry Burt and many others, including postmasters and labor leaders from over Contra Costa County.

An interesting episode of the meeting in which the senator cordially invited fellow citizens to "call me Mac" is contributed by Reader Charlie Patton in an adjoining column.

DEMOCRAT WHIST

Combined with a short business meeting a whist will be held by Democratic Club No. 1 at the Clubhouse at 255 Twenty-second Street on next Monday night. The general public is invited to attend the whist.

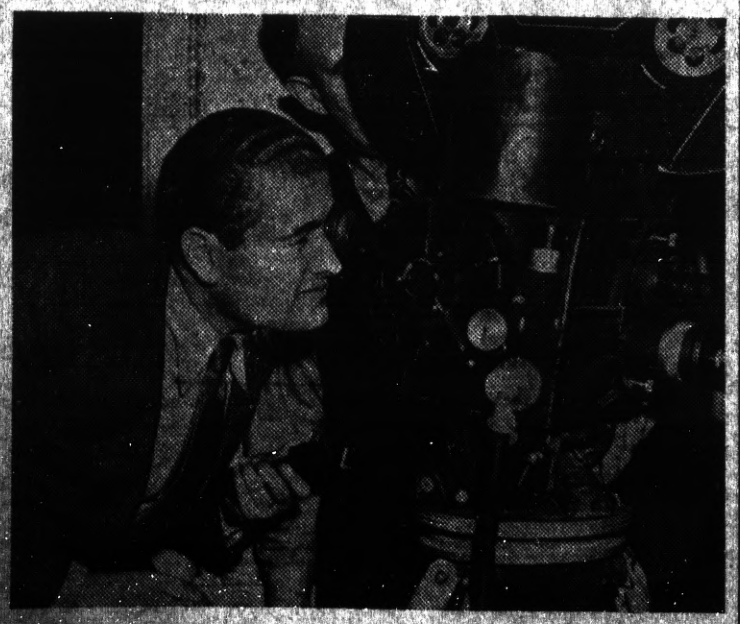
When Windsors Visited Hungary

The duke and duchess of Windsor and their hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bedeau, pose in native costume before the latter's hunting lodge at Bordsodivanka, Hungary, where the Windsors were guests recently. The duchess stayed at the French villa of the Bedeaux for a time after she left England last winter.

Here's the "Bird" for Aviation

Not satisfied with present-day aircraft, R. Passat, center, of Surbiton, England, invented this new-type flying machine which he claims is inspired by action of birds in flight. Wings of the "Lark," as he calls it, are covered on the underside with a gauzy material which is said to catch the air like the feathers of a bird in flight.

Duce's Son Studies the Movies



On a visit to Hollywood to study American methods of motion picture making, Vittorio Mussolini, twenty-one-year-old son of Italy's premier, gets his first lesson in the fine points by sighting through the finder of a movieeel camera. During his visit young Mussolini is under the tutorship of Hal Roach.

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

★★★By VIRGINIA VALE★★★

WHILE all the important motion-picture producers were trying to interest Ronald Colman in big, serious dramas, he slipped over to the Hal Roach studio and agreed to star in a goofy comedy called "Fancy Free." No one else even suspected that Ronnie wanted to join the parade of serious players who have scored in light offerings.

His best friend, Bill Powell, is suspected of selling him the idea. Bill has such fun making comedies, and so do Myrna Loy and Carole Lombard, and the newest recruit, Constance Bennett. I would not be at all surprised if Constance were to play the lead opposite Colman.

Now that Bill Powell is wandering around Europe, Myrna Loy is going to stray over to the Twentieth Century-Fox studio to make a picture with Warner Baxter, her second-best leading man. The story is "Career in C Major," and is all about a woman with a not-so-good voice who is absolutely determined to get into grand opera. Her husband views the whole project with distaste, until he finds that his barber-shop chord baritone is just what the opera scouts have been looking for.

Warner Baxter

Just as soon as a radio performer makes an outstanding hit, the motion picture scouts grab him, so now it is Professor Quiz who is going to step before the camera. He and James Wallington, the ever-popular announcer, are going to be in Columbia Pictures' "Freshman Follies."

The tremendous popularity of "The Prisoner of Zenda" has revived interest in swashbuckling mythical kingdom romances, so Sam Goldwyn has decided it is high time to film "Graustark" again. It has been made twice before, but not in the gorgeous way that Sam will make it. He plans to have Merle Oberon play the beautiful princess and Gary Cooper the American newspaper man who rescues and marries her.

Motion-picture fans who have been lamenting because so many of their Hollywood favorites have abandoned the screen for a fling on the stage can just stop worrying. So far the plays have not been good enough to hold the players for long. Sylvia Sidney, Henry Fonda, and Elissa Landi will probably be back at Hollywood at work in pictures before very long. But Frederic Marsh headed for New York to do a stage play.

Language of Bees Discovered to Be "Scented Dancing"

How They Tell Where Honey Can Be Obtained

By WATSON DAVIS

Washington.—Bees have a language of scented dancing. By means of it a scout bee that has made a rich discovery can send his fellow workers out after honey with almost as much dispatch as police are rushed to points of need by radio calls.

Scientists used to think that bees located flowers by color or scent. This is partially true. But in an exhaustive study of the bee habits, Prof. K. Von Frisch of Munich found that bees communicate with one another by a strange sort of dance performed within the hive. In this way they tell where honey can be obtained most easily.

Often it will take hours and sometimes days for a good feeding-place to be discovered. But when one bee has found the honey, many, perhaps several hundred, will appear in a very short time. And they all come from the same hive as the discoverer.

They Talk by Dancing.

Professor Von Frisch set out to discover the language or mode of communication of the bees.

Here's what he found: If a new kind of flower begins to bloom, it is discovered by a scout bee. He loads up with honey and flies home. In the hive he reports the discovery by a queer sort of dance, turning round and round in a circle with queer tripping little steps, once to the right, once to the left, very vigorously, often for a minute on the same spot. Other bees crowd around with high interest. They rush out of the hive and soon can be found at the honey source.

The dance is a signal that honey has been found. The bee carries upon him the scent of the flower containing the nectar. The other bees noting this odor search for it as they fly out of the hive in all directions. Moreover, the discovering bee returns to the good honey source and broadcasts another odor created by a scent organ on its abdomen that also guides the other workers.

Fungus Found That Traps and Eats Small Worms

Chapel Hill, N. C.—A fungus, a sort of fifth cousin to the common bread mold, that captures and eats small worms, was recently described by Dr. J. N. Couch of the University of North Carolina. While insect-eating plants such as the Venus fly trap and the pitcher plant are quite well known, animal-catching fungi are rare.

The fungus grows in a thread-like form. Loops are spaced at intervals along the thread. These are the traps. When a worm sticks its head or tail into one of these loops it contracts, tightening up on the worm and holding it fast. At times a worm may be caught by two of the loops.

When the worm is firmly held, small threads grow out from the main thread. They penetrate the body of the worm and digest it. Dr. Couch was able to watch the capture and digestion of the prey.

Home Heating Hints

By John Barclay
Heating Expert

HOME-OWNERS can't possibly get maximum economy and efficiency from their heating plants unless they burn the proper size coal. While different sizes can be burned in most furnaces, don't underestimate the importance of using the size—or combination of sizes—best suited to your heater to produce the most heat for the least money.

The size of the firepot in your furnace will, under ordinary circumstances, indicate the most efficient size to use. With a firepot—or interior—24 inches in diameter and 16 inches deep, egg size is usually recommended; 18 to 23 inches diameter and 12 to 18 inches deep, stove or chestnut size; less than 16-inch diameter, chestnut size.

Local climate, position of furnace, size of chimney and house sometimes make it advisable to vary these sizes. To be sure of what size coal you use, I would suggest you have your dealer call and advise you which size, or sizes, will give you the greatest heat value at the most economical cost.

Man's Highest Climb

The highest mountain ever scaled by man is Nanda Devi, a Himalayan peak 25,645 feet high, which baffled climbers for fifty years.

Of the party of six climbers in 1936, three were Americans. The difficulties were enhanced by the necessarily heavy loads to be carried and by the desertion, in fright, of most of the porters. The actual climbing took twenty-one days and the story, modestly told by one of the two climbers who attained the summit, is a quiet but inherently exciting record of a mountain ascent which competent judges describe as the finest yet made.

Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

JOYS and GLOOMS

MANY people can safely drink coffee. But many others—and all children—should never drink it. If you suspect the caffein in coffee disagrees with you...try Postum's 30-day test. Buy some Postum and drink it instead of coffee for one month.

If...after 30 days...you do not feel better, return the Postum container top with your name and address to General Foods, Battle Creek, Mich., and we will refund purchase price, plus postage! (Canadian address, General Foods, Ltd., Cobourg, Ont.)

Postum contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It comes in two forms... Postum Cereal, the kind you boil or percolate...and Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup. Economical, easy to make, delicious, hot or iced. You may miss coffee at first, but you'll soon love Postum for its own rich flavor. A product of General Foods. (Offer expires Dec. 31, 1937.)

SPORTS

DOG TRACK OPENS

A new and greater El Cerrito Kennel Club, beautified and modernized at great expense, inaugurated the 1937 winter season of greyhound racing this week. Races will be held nightly.

Completely renovated, the El Cerrito plant rises as a monument to the improved methods of greyhound racing.

The spacious grandstand, its main pavilions, display stand and paddock and surrounding walls are repainted.

A new racing surface covers the lightning like track on which the dogs perform in eleven events.

The judges stand is new. It is stuccoed and of two stories. It embodies the latest principles of racing.

In the tower is an expensive photo-finishing device, which catches the dogs at the wire and records in print the close finishes. The picture leaves no question over which dog really won the race. With the photo-finish sweeping the nation, El Cerrito has spared no expense to get the best equipment manufactured for that purpose.

Even the electrical 'bunny' is new this season at El Cerrito. The foundation for the rails on which the 'bunny' operates, carrying the 'bunny' arm, has been renewed and the entire housing around the quarter mile track replaced with new timbers and steel.

El Cerrito's Clubhouse on the main floor is refinished and will be the gathering spot for many fans nightly.

Officials anticipate one of the best meetings.

"Apple Pie Order"

HARMONY OF BODY MIND AND SPIRIT

By Taniz Tanagra

WORK AND RELAXATION

I have proven again for myself the zest and inspiration that may be derived from long hours of work.

I had hoped to combine with recent work in the southland a vacation as well . . but when the work began to require from ten to twelve hours a day the very thought of relaxation and pleasure grew dim . . until I did a turn about and applied the knowledge I have and should therefore use.

I did not permit my work to go on mentally at the end of each working day . . instead it was laid aside until the following day when work began and a short period of complete relaxation in every fibre and muscle taken along with the peace of mind deserved . . then I was ready to freshen up and seek a short period of diversion.

I managed to meet and study new personalities . . enjoy new and delicious types of cookery (since my diet during working hours was both simple and balanced) to re-enjoy old favorite spots of beauty where I found more to admire and remember than when formerly visited.

Some friends and acquaintances I found alert and abreast of the times . . others had found a niche in life and made rapid strides even to reaching the goal some of them had set for themselves . . others were weary and lagged behind either through neglect of the physical or carelessness of the mental attitude.

My periods of sleep and rest were short . . but complete.

Should you say I had great vitality you would be wrong . . but should you say I gave the physical proper care and attention and kept mentally interested and enthusiastic every moment . . you would be right.

And so, instead of returning weary and depleted . . I have on the contrary returned with greater zest and inspiration.

The ability to gain from each day more enthusiasm is what I hope in part to help you to bring to yourself each and every one of you . . under all conditions and in various states of physical and mental health.

A True Sentiment

That is a true sentiment which makes us feel that we do not love our country less, but more, because we have laid up in our minds the knowledge of other lands and other institutions, and other races, and have enkindled afresh within us the instinct of a common humanity, and of the universal beneficence of the Creator. —Dean Stanley.

No. 6. "To Combat the Autocracy of Both the Classes and the Masses."

The membership of The American Legion comes from neither class nor mass, but is a cross ection of our entire citizenship. All meet upon a common ground in The American Legion.

A more truly democratic organization than The American Legion does not exist. It is composed of men from every station of life; within its ranks are represented the professions and the trades, meeting on common ground as true comrades, without any distinction of rank or title. Its membership includes World War officers who held the rank of general and private in the rearest of rear ranks. But in the Legion, there is no rank.

Thus, as an organization of pure comradeship, it is well qualified to combat the autocracy of both the clttsses and the masses. That the Legion is living up to this principle, as stated in the preamble of its constitution, can be proved by citing only two examples, from among many.

Probably one of the outstanding examples of an autocracy of the classes in America is to be found in the orgy of profiteering which occurred in the World War. It has been said that for every cross that was planted over the grave of an American soldier in France, arose on the hillsides of the United States a millionaire's palace While the soldiers fought and bled and died for a dollar a day, unconscionable prices were being charged and paid back home for the munitions with which they waged battle.

When The American Legion was organized, one of the first questions the veterans considered was the scandal of profiteering that had piled up the expense of the war beyond all reason. A careful study was ordered by the Legion and as a result of this inquiry, Congress was asked to adopt legislation taking the profit out of war. The Legion requested a law which, in the event of another war, would bring capital, industry and manpower into the service on a basis of equality, with special privilege and profit for none.

The Legion holds that the nation has a right to call its manpower to the colors in a time of crisis; but it holds that dollars shall not be held to be of greater value than human life. It demands the conscription of dollars as well as men. It declares that in another war, a few profiteers shall not be permitted to build up great fortunes upon the crosses of the dead and the sacrifices of the living. The Legion was the first group to submit to the American people the proposal of a Universal Service Act to make war a profitless business, thereby reducing the danger of war.

That autocracy is not the handmaiden of wealth alone, however, is amply proved by the example of Russia. The masses, under the wrong kind of leadership, can be autocratic, as any potentate ever to don the ermine of power. It is doubtful if there ever existed, even in the darkest ages of history, a more complete autocracy than Soviet Russia. Parading as the government of the people, Communism has completely enslaved the citizenship of Russia. Every shred of individual liberty, every grain of personal rights, has been destroyed.

The American Legion stands united against the introductios of that form of autocracy in the United States. The Legion believes firmly in a government of the people, by the people and for the people. As an organization it has no partisan political ideas. It is all American, and nothing else. Within its ranks are men of every recognized political belief. Their Legion membership does not interfere with the full exercise of their individual beliefs and rights as American citizens.

Here, Mr. Ex-service Man, is an organization you can't afford not to belong to. Of course, you must measure up to certain qualifications. You must have served in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps during the fighting days of the World War—and you must have served honorably.A dishonorable discharge, however trivial the reason now may seem, automatically bars you from membership in The American Legion. Ask any Legionairre; he will tell you if you are eligible. Do it today.

THE CAULIFLOWER COLYUM

By Frankie Neil

Former Bantamweight Champion of the World

After a champion wins his way to the top, he finds still another struggle when he gets up there. Subtle obstacles are put in his path which, even if not openly subsidized by the opposition, conspire to bring about his defeat.

Boxing champions must be the best examples, physically, of their weight and class in the world. And anything which will have a tendency to tear down the fine instrumentality of the human body and a quick mind and perception to go with it must be avoided as the plague by the boxing champion who wants to stay up there.

Not for moral reasons alone, which are in themselves good, but for the sake of commercial success, if you will, the boxer must avoid the innumerable temptations which a friendly public—sometimes fostered by a secret and unfriendly group, too—wish to heap upon the often gullible champion. Dissipation of all sorts must be "out." And what would be a harmless round of night clubs with a pretty girl to the average fellow, is about liking drinking carbolic acid for the champ.

But Dad Neil, my father and my closest and dearest pal was with me, and however much I might have been disposed to accept such invitations I was not allowed to go. In later years, I learned to appreciate that, I can tell you.

Anyway, there did not seem to be such hot competition in the bantamweight division in the vicinity of New York at that time and we heard of a fellow out in Los Angeles whi was rocking them all to sleep—a boy named Billy DeCoursey.

So out to L. A. we rushed.

I found that Billy weighed about one-twenty and I had not yet begun to attain the bantam limit, being only 113 pounds at the ringside. Moreover, while "I was then champion, in reality I was only a novice, while he was a veteran of the squared ring.

Matched at one-twenty, my training quarters were established at Santa Monica, outside of Los Angeles. Near the ocean, it was just ti my liking. I always liked swimming and I plunged in to the ocean every day.

Such every day swimming is, itself, not recommended for boxing training—for while swimming is one of the most healthful of sports, yet it softens the muscles and makes them less effective in receiving the blows in the contest. However, it didn't seem to hurt me and I was glad to have the relaxation.

The night of the contest came and we were in the ring receiving instructions from the referee for the go. When the bell rang, I walked out, shook hands, and started to plan the strategy of the match. After jabbing for a while I could see that, in spite of his advantage in weight, he was no match, and after the seventh round he was just about done up. I asked him to quit as the customers could certainly see the outcome. But he would not, so I had to continue giving him a trim until the referee himself stopped it in the fifteenth round.

Can't blame him too much as I never quit in a fight myself.
